Why Did Jesus Die? Lesson for March 29, 1953

BIBLE

AS Good Friday approaches we A are all made aware—whether we belong to a church or not, whether we are "orthodox" or not —that this Friday commemorates e death of Jesus more than 19 nturies ago. It is a fact that no her death in the world's hisry has been so vividly remem Few biographies in the vorld's libraries give as large a art of their space to the death f their heroes as the Gospels do the death of Christ. It is plain nat the church sees in the death Christ something quite different om the simple statement that has to go into every man's record It is something much more than an item in the vital statistics of out when we ask the simple ques tion: Why did Jesus die? We Were There "Were you there when th would not have Dr. Foreman been killed." But Clovis was mistaken, Sc diers were there, not barbarians either; well-disciplined troops, trained to uphold law and order. And the soldiers killed Jesus. Not a sword was raised for him. There were doubtless hoodlums there, they swarm to such scenes but the hoodlums did not kill Jesus. He was killed by order of a high court. The leaders of society, of business, of politics joined in hounding him to death. The soldiers were carrying out the orders which were given be cause "everybody" (so Governo Pilate thought) demanded it. The respectable people who read this newspaper had their "opposit

. . . For Our Sins Jesus died for our sins, Paul writes to the Corinthians when he is putting the Gospel in a nutshell (I Cor. 15:3). Partly that means because of our sins, as has just been said. But the word Paul uses (in the Greek in which he alway wrote) has the startling meaning

It is true, the sin of man brought Jesus to the cross. But Jesus' death was not a matter of being beaten by sin. The Christia church has always looked on the cross as a sign of triumph, not efeat. Not our triumph, but God's triumph. Call it a paradox if you like, but God turned apparent defeat into victory. Good Friday

Why is it that the Christian church calls it 'Good' Friday and not "Bad" Friday? It is because the Christian church has experienced something strange: that nen and women who have come ose to the Cross and understood t in its deeper meaning, men and omen who discovered in it the neasure of God's love for us, have r religions tell of gods who do not care much what men do. Oth er religions tell of gods who condemn sin and curse sinners. But only the religion of the New Testament tells about the true and on God, the God whose love is show It is a sad mistake to think that what happened at the Cross was that Jesus mercifully stepped between us and an angry God. That is not the New Testament picture. What happened there was that ied for us." And what that showed, Paul writes (Romans 5:8) is not first of all the merciful heart of Jesus but the loving heart of
